

Sherry, what did you learn in class?

“In class, I learned that writing good compositions is a good way to express what you feel in life, persuading other people to your way of thinking, or even influence people to make a good decision to help others. Thus, writing English well is essential for us. From now on, I will do my best when learning English. I hope that I can write some meaningful articles to inspire people in the future.”